

Jeremy Foster

jeremy@peakbalance.nz / +64272007144

Keynote Proposal

“Ensuring Distributed Decisions are Good”

Abstract

Are you the ‘go to’ on every decision? Do you wish that the team would act and take ownership?

This introduction keynote will outline how to distribute good decision making into any organisation, allowing executive leaders the time to get off the tools and into the strategy.

Suitable for executive teams and boards wanting to see more effective decisions being taken and owned by the team.

This entertaining and interactive keynote leverages a lifetime of experience, working across multiple continents, leading early and late stage tech companies as well as time served in the NZ Army.

Learning Objectives

1. The three types of leadership
2. How to build capability and planning into your organisation
3. A better way to think about trust
4. Group wisdom to identify key areas
5. How to recover from being an autocrat

Deliverables

1. 45 min keynote plus 15 min Q&A
2. Interactive with anonymous voting throughout session

References

Carl Jackson – Country Manager, The CEO Institute CarlJ@CEOInstitute.com

Johnny Quinn – CEO, Audience Alive jq@audiencealive.com